NTU students spread green message
Students from Nanyang Technological University’s (NTU) pro-environment club are helping to spread the green message in the Youth Olympic Village.

Volunteers from the NTU Earthlink club encourage youth athletes they see around the Youth Olympic Village to write and pin a pro-environmental message onto a board that the volunteers wear as they walk about the campus.

During the Games, they will also help out at the United Nations Environment Programme booth to further promote the cause.
