If eyes are not protected adequately when working with laser beams, severe damage can occur.

The correct choice of lens density and colour is based on the wavelength and power of the specific laser being used.