Deloitte and NTU Singapore to launch audit analytics course

Student enrollment will start from August 2020.

A memorandum of understanding (MoU) was inked between Deloitte and Nanyang Business School at Nanyang Technological University (NTU) Singapore to launch a new course in audit analytics, a press release confirms. This 13-weeks course aims at leveraging technology in the application and analysis of data in auditing.

An audit and assurance partner and an audit analytics senior manager from Deloitte will conduct the course. Students will learn to apply data analytics in audit and practice on real-life examples by developing prototype visualisation dashboards. Upon successful completion, students may get a chance of an internship or job offer at Deloitte.

This new course will be offered as an elective course and is open to all accountancy students who have taken the pre-requisite AC2104 Assurance & Auditing.
