NTU Singapore pays it forward through volunteer service to the community

To commemorate its 30th anniversary celebrations, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore), has marshalled hundreds of students, employees and alumni, to give back to the community.

More than 300 volunteers from over 40 NTU schools, student clubs, departments, and alumni associations have pledged to work with over 30 community partners in service projects supporting a variety of causes. These projects will help more than 5,000 beneficiaries in Singapore and countries such as Cambodia and Malaysia.

The projects are part of NTU Service Week that runs from 22 to 29 January 2022.

Launched by Mayor of South West District, Ms Low Yen Ling earlier today, this is the first of three community engagement initiatives under NTU's new "We Belong" campaign that aims to encourage students, employees and alumni to give back and propel the community forward through volunteer service and fundraising.

NTU also launched a new alumni magazine, U, at the event. The visually-bold magazine aims to raise greater awareness of NTU’s developments among alumni and build a sense of pride in their alma mater. U also celebrates and inspires with stories of fellow alumni from Singapore and around the world and motivates them to stay connected with the University.

NTU President, Professor Subra Suresh, said, “Community engagement and support have been defining features of NTU’s rich heritage and phenomenal growth since its inception, as it transformed from a local teaching university into an internationally renowned research-intensive university in a very short span of time.

“Over the past two years, the OneNTU family has come together to support those in need in response to the global pandemic. The NTU Service Week is another example of the community spirit that connects us all together through shared values.”

Ms Low Yen Ling, Mayor of South West District, said, “South West CDC is delighted to partner NTU in this new initiative which will see the entire NTU family extending their time, expertise and support across a variety of projects to uplift vulnerable residents in the South West District. This strong spirit of giving back distinguishes NTU as a university with a heart to care - all the way from its students and staff to its alumni. We look forward to continuing and deepening our partnership to build a more caring and inclusive South West community.”

Service to the community

This year’s inaugural NTU Service Week centres on the four focus areas of Digital Inclusion, Health and Well-being, Social welfare, and Sustainability.

Participants can volunteer in a variety of ways, from donating laptops, to providing social support to the seniors and underprivileged residents at South West District.

For a start, 300 pre-loved laptops are being donated to needy students and families in the South West District. The laptop donation aims to achieve the twin goals of recycling electronics and reducing digital inequality, especially during the pandemic where many activities have gone virtual.

NTU volunteers are assisting in the refurbishing of the donated laptops and conducting workshops for school-going children on how to use the laptops.

Mrs Nursafawati Binte Kamaruz'zani, a resident of South West District said, “I am very thankful for having received the refurbished laptop. My 8 year-old son does not have a laptop and it has posed some difficulties when he has online lessons where he resorts to using my handphone instead.”

Beyond Service Week, NTU will also be partnering South West CDC, one of the main partners to extend support to uplift the lives of vulnerable residents in the South West District through six initiatives such as distribution of festive cheers packs, and tele-befriending to prevent social isolation amongst seniors. Please refer to Annex A for more information on the programmes.

The We Belong campaign will stretch through the first quarter of 2022. Other community projects that have been lined up during NTU Service Week include a hot food distribution programme in Nanyang constituency, a community telehealth service in Bukit Gombak, and a household refurbishment project in Boon Lay.

In addition to NTU Service Week, the two other flagship events of We Belong are: Best Foot Forward – a virtual run that will take place in February – and NTU Giving Day in March, which will bring together the OneNTU community to raise funds for university-wide critical needs and school-specific priorities.

Individuals who would like to take part in these events can register via the We Belong website.
