

Small QKD chip

Researchers at Nanyang Technological University developed a quantum key distribution (QKD) chip just three millimeters in size – an impressive feat considering similar setups can be as large as a fridge, nature.com reported.