

This course is about more than just literature adaptations. In what ways, we shall ask, are texts transformed from one genre to another? If turning a book into a film is perhaps the most obvious form of what we understand under adaptation and what we conceive of as the most often expected link between literature and film, how do films impact on how we read? How does film adaptation feature in fiction, for example? In this module, we shall critically analyse the shifting, ambiguous, and yet creative, two-way relationship between film and literature.

We shall be discussing back projections, transpositions, prequels, remakes, &c as well as different models of discussing them.

The focus is on the changing adaptation of well-known classics. We shall be discussing the cultural myths engendered by A Christmas Carol, Heidi, and the figure of Sherlock Holmes, as well as transpositions of Pride and Prejudice into a different time and context, and also a prequel to Oliver Twist. A comparison of the original works with their "reworking" in different media will be essential to this course.

Please also note that students are expected to read all original texts (or "source texts," listed under Core Texts) as well as watch the adaptations based on these texts.

Presentations can be based on the core texts or other appropriate texts (tbc).

Core Texts

Jane Austen, Pride and Prejudice
Frances Hodgson Burnett, A Little Princess
Charles Dickens, A Christmas Carol
Charles Dickens, Oliver Twist
Arthur Conan Doyle, The Sign of Four
Johanna Spyri, Heidi

Films:

Blackadder's Christmas Carol
Bride & Prejudice
Dr Bell and Mr Doyle: The Dark Beginnings of Sherlock Holmes
"Elementary, Dear Data"
Heidi
A Little Princess
The Little Princess (Musical)
Oliver Twist (Prequel)
Pride and Prejudice (BBC miniseries)
Sherlock Holmes: The Voice of Terror
Scrooged

Lecture Schedule

Week No.	Topics	Readings
18 January	Introduction
25 January	Of Accuracy, Authenticity, and Parody: Kohliwood and Costume Drama	Pride and Prejudice
1 February	Of Genres and the Generic: The Literary Classic on Television	Oliver Twist
8 February	Twisting Oliver: Remaking a Classic	Oliver Twist / Oliver Twist: The Prequel
--- ----	Chinese New Year

Week No.	Topics	Readings
22 February	Scrooge: Adapting Victorian Values	A Christmas Carol / Blackadder's Christmas Carol; Scrooged
1 March	Holmes for the Times I: Transposition as Updating	The Sign of Four / The Voice of Terror
8 March	Recess
15 March	Holmes for the Times II: Transposition as Intertextuality	The Sign of Four / Dr Bell and Mr Doyle / "Elementary, Dear Data"
22 March	Animating Iconic Landscapes	Heidi
29 March	Transpositions I	Group Presentations
5 April	Transpositions II	Group Presentations
12 April	Song & Dance: Musical Versions	A Little Princess
19 April	Q&A	Revision

Course Assessment

Essay 50%

Group Presentation 20%: Design and present on an original adaptation (more details soon).

In-class writing exercises, including quiz 20%

Participation 10%

Date of the in-class quiz: tbc