HL2029 American Modernism

Professor: Dr. Kevin Riordan (kriordan@ntu.edu.sg)

Tuesdays 14:30-17:20 (LHS-TR+41)

Office Hours (HSS 03-72): by appointment

This course expands students' knowledge of American literature and culture from the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. While many important figures of "high modernism" were Americans living abroad, this course primarily focuses on the literary developments within the American landscape itself. Following W. E. B. Du Bois's famous prediction that the problem of the 20th Century would be the "color-line," our readings pose challenging questions about difference and belonging. We will pay close attention to how individuals can be included and excluded in a national literature, and we will examine how American social realities are represented and contested using new aesthetic strategies. Across the term students will address the following questions: How does the United States produce a distinctive mythology of the individual? How does literature support or refute the so-called American dream, especially in times of crisis? And finally, how do modernist aesthetics and world historical events find unique expression in the American literary tradition?
